Universal Electric Corporation Expands Headquarters

Universal Electric Corporation, the manufacturers of STARLINE Track Busway, is pleased to announce that it has expanded its Canonsburg, PA office space by 10,000 square feet. This new space will house the sales department and includes a new training center that will be used for customer visits, product demonstrations and sales partner training.

“I am very excited about this additional space. It will allow us to continue our growth as a premier supplier of customizable power distribution systems” says Lance Sabados, Director of Sales.

Universal Electric Corporation, headquartered in Canonsburg, PA, is a leading supplier of overhead customizable power distribution products serving the data center, interoperability laboratories, retail and industrial markets. (www.uecorp.com)
